Instructions on the need for change in student's PSP

- PSP changes are only necessary for students who have not completed their studies in their own group or at the latest at the pace of the last study unit implementation.
- An exception to this is the Research and Development Methods study unit, whose study code will change from the autumn semester 2024 as the objectives have slightly changed. All students who have not yet completed the study unit by the time of the change will complete it with the new code. In the future, we will make mass editing of PSPs. In mass editing, the new study unit is submitted to the PSP if you have not yet enrolled for the study unit before. If you have earlier enrolment or the study unit is graded as fail, please note the change yourself.

Applies to those who started before autumn 2021:

Curriculum renewed

- The curriculum was renewed starting from autumn 2021. If you have started your studies earlier and you still have uncompleted compulsory studies, check with your teacher tutor which studies you need to complete.

Studies from other degree programmes and generic studies (1/2)

- You can also choose studies from Laurea's other complementary competence curricula and from common generic studies, taking into account the prerequisites: The curricula can be viewed here.
- You can also choose studies in the core competence of another degree programme as complementary competence, as long as they develop your competence and you fit into the group.
- Please note that the scope of elective studies is rather small and thus it is important to choose them carefully. Please consult your tutor lecturer on these choices.

3AMK and CampusOnline studies

- Including these studies in your PSP is possible if they produce new competence for your degree. Please consult your tutor lecturer of the suitability.
